

American Idle

© 2008 Will Stanley

You're standing right there, at the refrigerator
Why does my request, set you off
I just asked for a beer, I didn't know it'd be a detonator
That'd trigger you to blast me as a goof off
Your problem is, you don't watch enough teevee
Or you'd know there's lot of bucks to be had
Just doin what I do best, it's called realiy tv
And it's much more than just a fad.

So please don't yell and call me lazy
Or criticize my lyin' still
You should praise all the ways I'm Trying my best to win, American Idle.

Locomotion, makes me dizzy
That's what I try hard to avoid
I use slow-motion when I must get busy
Though no motion at all keeps me overjoyed.
So would you mind fetchin' me a cold one
You see, this one is gettin' kind a light
And it's quite enough work, to just lift and hold one
In fact, I've worked up an appetite.

But don't get upset and call my lazy
Yellin' might cause my beer to spill
Don't forget the cheese, when you bring that nacho plate please
I'll need all my strength to win, American Idle.

It takes years of practice to get this darn thing down
And I know you want me to succeed
You'll be so proud when I wear that golden crown
The king of all who underachieve

But don't get upset and call me lazy
I hate it when your voice gets so shrill
It might cause me to do something hasty
And ruin my chances to win, American Idle.
I'm a shoo-in to win, American Idle
That's I-D-L-E, American Idle.
