

Nevermind

© 2009 Will Stanley

I've tried time and time again, to tell you we've reached the end
We've been together long enough, to know when we've run out of love
And so I prepare myself, to give my little speech
I won't look at you until I'm through, though I'm sure you won't disagree.

Cuz I know you've had enough of me, and I've had enough of you
We had some good times, it certainly is true
And for a long while, I was quite in love with you
But I assume I'll be fine, just like I was back when,
But then again... nevermind.

As my mind travels back through all the years, through the joyous times and all the tears
My resolve starts to slowly fade away, and I decide to put it off one more day.
But then I remember when, you criticized me and my friends
You said the things we did were more than dumb, and that made me mad as a wet hen.

It's clear you've had enough of me, and I've certainly had enough of you
Despite some really good times, like our honeymoon
And some wild adventures beneath the naked moon
I hope I'll be fine, just like I was back when
But then again... nevermind.

Life and love can be confusing
And sometimes it's hard to know which way to turn
Okay, I made mistakes like too much boozing with my friends
But that don't mean, I'll never learn

I know you've had enough of me, but I haven't had my fill of you
Though I try to convince myself, I don't love you anymore
I guess I'm just afraid, you're going to walk out of that door
So I want to beat you to the punch, but when I contemplate the end
That final end... nevermind.
