

Stop Those Lies

© 2014 Will Stanley

Some things they say last forever
And some things will change with the wind
But one thing I've thought would be better
If people would change now and then

But what you see is what you get
And it's a darn good bet
That someone who's done it before will do it again.

So stop those lies, I mean it
Stop those fibs
Don't you know that I know just
What you did
You can pretend that I'm in the dark
And think you've gotten away with a lark
But stop those lies, or you will break my heart.

There's no better time for confrontation
Than when you have caught, someone in a lie
That's the time to ask for explanation
And then just keep staring at their eyes.

You'd be surprised what you will find
As the guilty party acts inclined
To look up to the heavens and sigh.

Now stop those lies, I mean it
Stop those fibs
Don't you know that I know just
What you did
You can pretend that I'm a half-wit
Easy to lie to, a cinch to outwit
But stop those lies, I'm having a conniption fit.

Why can't I say the things on my mind
Why can't I lay it on the line
I've caught you redhanded trying to deceive
Why am I still biding my time?