

Strength In Strings

© 2013 Will Stanley

Life's tough, that's a fact, and something I know well enough
So what, I'll get a grip and find a way to buck up
Just because she left me in this state
I won't get beat, by a heartache
And so I ponder, as I wonder
Do I hear a, distant drummer

When I'm feeling down, and feel like I've hit the wall
I still stand tall
Cuz here's what I do to really make my heart sing
Pick up my Les Paul
And find Strength In Strings

No fear, life's gotta move forward from here
No bluff, I'll just have to, make myself tough enough
I don't care that I've been made a fool
Or that the words she used were so cruel
I'll make it, cuz I can take it
There's no way that, I'll mistake it

Even though she tried, hard to make me feel small
I'll never crawl
I'll do the only thing, that always makes my bell ring
Cradle my Les Paul
And find Strength In Strings.

Please don't say, I should see a shrink
Or pray for release
When I hurt, I trust my instinct
And Les brings inner peace.

I don't need to feel like a star
When I play my favorite guitar
I just feel it, it's so real it
Brings so much joy that, I can't conceal it.

My fingers do a dance, and my heart fills with joy
I'm a happy boy
It's a rapture as Mr Paul begins to sing
That's why I say
I find Strength In Strings.
