

The Garden Of Our Hearts

© Will Stanley 2019

I take a walk, see a stalk, with a flower perched on top
I considered plucking it, but then had another thought
Why not, dig it up, give it a garden home
Where I could watch it grow, and it wouldn't be alone.
I realized that would be wise
Cuz the flower could delight my eyes
From now until the summer must depart.

Love is like, a flower sweet and bright
That I've planted in the garden of my heart.

You and I, see eye to eye, we're like two slices of a pie
We know the other's there, when we're feeling high and dry
You take the time to find the rhyme
When all I see is a red stop sign
You support me without fail when I just want to whine
That's why our love has made the grade
We never practice throwing shade
On the other when they're feeling not so smart.

Love is like, a flower sweet and bright
That you've planted in the garden of your heart.

Why not admit we've each found the one
To make our souls jump for joy
All our friends, are completely stunned
When they realize it's not trompe l'oeil, oh boy

Instrumental

I could sing my love for you, until the book of love is overdue
But you know, a song of mine will never chart

Love is like, a flower sweet and bright
That we've planted in the garden of our hearts

Yes love is like a flower sweet and bright
That we've planted in the garden, right next to the Alyssum
That we've planted in the garden of our hearts.
