

The Train Out Of Town

© 2007 Will Stanley

Drop dead cute and sweet as pie, Brandy seemed the type that I should marry one fine day
I couldn't wait till she got out of work and picked me up in her daddy's chevrolet
We drove for hours, just to be alone
Stopped and picked wild flowers, to give to her mom
And as the daylight waned, we cuddled on the porch, until her dad sent me home.

That's when I hopped the train, and headed out of town
It's true I can't explain, why I didn't, stay around
I guess I was afraid, the rest would be a letdown
So I caught the train, out of town.

Suzie took my break away, the first time that I saw her gorgeous face
We started talking, and in the end, I got invited up to her place
We made love for hours, in every way I knew
And when we finally showered, I knew her through and through
If action was my passion, I wouldn't find a better girl than Sexy Sue.

That's when I hopped the train, and headed out of town
It's true I can't explain, why I didn't, hang around
I guess I was afraid, the rest would be a letdown
So I caught the train, out of town.

Bridge: They say that guys like me can't commit
And it sure rings true, I must admit
Why else would I turn down a life of love and joy
Unless I'm just a spoiled narcissistic boy

Both Brandy and Suzie were perfect in many ways
But it'll take more than perfection to get me to stay....

And so I hop the train, and head on out of town
It's true I can't explain, why I don't, stay around
I guess that I'm afraid, the rest will be a letdown
So I catch the train, out of town.
That's why I catch the train, and head on out of town
It's true I can't explain, why I don't, hang around
I guess that I'm afraid, the rest will be a letdown
So I hop the train, out of town.