

Time Wounds All Heels

© 2015 Will Stanley

You trusted me implicitly
But I behaved illicitly
Got no excuse, I was wrong
Could only hope our love was strong enough
And that your threats were just a bluff.

But then you said you had to leave
You couldn't stand a man who deceives
All I could do was hang my head
When you said just how bad it always feels
I guess it's true what they say
Time wounds all heels.

I apologized, a thousand times
But still I find, you won't change your mind.

I tried to show you I could reform
That my wayward ways were never the norm
You wouldn't bite, the pain was real
So filled with spite you could not conceal
I guess it's true what they say
Time wounds all heels.

It's far too late, our love is through
You're not coming back, no matter what I do.

So now I sit and hang my head
Sometimes I wish that I were dead
Why can't I ever learn
That I end up spurned when my lies are revealed
Cuz it's true what they say
Time wounds all heels.
